

ENGLISHMAN TO TRY FOR SPEED RECORD AT DAYTONA BEACH

Crack British Pilot Will Attempt To Lower Existing Speed Mark

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 3—Another carefree smiling Englishman is in America today to challenge death and man-made speeds on the hard sand of Daytona beach.

This time it is Kaye Don, crack British race driver, who will follow in the wheel ruts of his famous English predecessor, Major Sir Henry Segrave. Last March, on the Florida sands that have cost two American speed kings their lives, Segrave drove his Golden Arrow Sunbeam to the amazing record of 221.24 miles an hour.

Don, a good-natured veteran of World war flying days, will try to smash that record in a bigger, and he thinks, better Sunbeam, this one a mammoth seven-ton creation in silver-gray labeled the "Silver Bullet." It is his turn to drive because Segrave, one of his best friends, has definitely turned from automobile record-smashing to his first love, the building of a speed boat that will conquer all time standards on the water.

Don arrived in New York yesterday on the Berengaria, a few cabins away from where the Silver Bullet lay crated and lashed to the fore and deck. In his party were his sister, Mrs. Roberts, Louis Costello, a pilot of a Frenchman who drives the racing monsters for Sunbeam, and eight mechanics. The party leaves Thursday for Florida, where the tests must be made under the American Automobile association auspices, between March 15 and March 20.

Don is a bachelor of 35, tall, well set up, with sandy hair, a brick in his mouth, blue eyes, a pair of deep dimples at the corners of his mouth. He drives purely for the sport of the thing, was British champion in 1928 and 1929, has never piloted a machine faster than 162 miles an hour, and flew a bomber in France during the World war. This is his first trip to America.

The Silver Bullet which has never been driven but has a theoretical speed of 250 miles an hour is a sleek improvement over Segrave's Golden Arrow in ending wind resistance, Don said. The new car is 70 feet long, weighs seven tons, has two stabilizing fins to keep it on the ground, and is equipped with silk tires 27 inches in diameter and lightly covered with rubber. The tires are tested to last four minutes at a speed of 300 miles an hour.

The Bullet is powered by two 12-cylinder aviation engines in tandem, developing 2,000 horsepower, three times as much as Segrave's Golden Arrow. It has three speeds and should travel at the rate of 30 miles an hour in first, 170 in second and 200 in high.

A machine has been invented with which photographs are printed on a long roll of paper to save handling, being cut apart after they are finished.

Central Christian Wins City Church Title In Intermediate League

PRESBYTERIAN TEAM VISITORS TO ROLL IN A.B.C. TOURNEY

Senior League Entries Now Led by Central Christian; Epworth No. 2 in Intermediate Group Cellular Central Christian's Intermediate league entry romped all over the Trinity Baptists last night to score a 31 to 6 victory and clinch the first position honors for the second half of the season. Central can claim sole right to first place in their league by virtue of also having won the top spot in the first half of the year. The winners were never hard pressed in their hunt for the trophy, but put a weak team on the floor and the winners were able to score almost at will. McAninch was high point man for both teams, scoring exactly twice as many points as the opponents were able to gather in among them.

The First Presbyterian entry topped the Epworth No. 1 team 21 to 16 to gain the next to the top rung of the church league ladder. Stays stood out in the Presbyterian win while Cookson looked good for the losers.

In the Senior League title fight, Central Christian No. 1 and Trinity Baptist are holding on to a deadlock for the coveted lead. Trinity Baptist topped up the First Presbyterian by a 37 to 28 score while the Christians were running rough shod over the woefully weak Calvary outfit to the tune of a 55 to 23 count.

The league only out of town participants came into the city tonight enough to hand the Epworth M. E. five the short end of a 25 to 22 score, which fast ended them into a tie with the First Presbyterians for a second place. The United Brethren five came through with a win in the same round of play over the representatives of the Central Christians No. 2 to place themselves in a tie with Epworth M. E. for places 5 and 6 in the standings.

Calvary Evangelical and Central Christian No. 2 have been going nowhere fast so that they are also in the tie for that least desired position known as the cellar. Both teams have dropped three games in as many starts.

The Senior league schedule is not yet finished. Complete summaries and official standings of the teams in both Intermediate and Senior church leagues are listed below.

Local Cleveland Teams To Give Way To Incoming Maple Smashers

By International News Service
CLEVELAND, March 3—With Cleveland's booster pin-poppers scheduled to conclude their attack on the American Bowling Congress tournament, visitors tomorrow night, preparations were being made here today for the reception of the best of the out-of-town invaders.

Thirty seven out-of-town teams will invade down on the alley Friday night at 8:30 to bombard the championship pins. Among them will be teams from Mansfield, O., three from Chicago, three from Detroit, two from Toledo, two from Syracuse, N. Y., one from Cincinnati, and one from Newark, N. J.

The first former American Bowling Congress champion to appear at the current session of the tournament will make his bow with the Nyack, N. Y. team Friday. He is Barney Spinnella. During his bowling career, Spinnella has held three titles. In 1927 in the all-stars, he topped the pins for a 2011, which is only five pins behind the record of William J. Kroy of Philadelphia. In 1922 he hit 1,820 in the same event, and during with his brother Charles, shared the two-man crown with a score of 1,230.

At tonight's session of the tournament 56 Cleveland booster teams will demolish the runways. Among them will be 17 Strohman teams.

Only one team was able to slip into the present standings at last night's booster session. Western Reserve Troopers, rolled late, fourth place with a total of 2,088. The leaders in the present standings are the Cleveland Hardware Shipping Rooms with a total of 2,729.

REDS SIGN MAY

Last of Cincinnati Holdouts Now in Camp

By the Associated Press
ORLANDO, Fla., March 3—Julius May, captain and last of the Cincinnati Reds' holdouts is back in the fold. With his arrival in camp the entire pitching staff of 12 is on hand.

George Kelley, first baseman, Johnny Goetz, catcher, and Bob Monson and Earl Webb, outfielders, are now the only absentees but all are expected to report in a few days.

Bruin Manager Grooming Cub Hurlers for Opener

AVAILON, Carolina Island, Calif., March 3—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs is devoting most of his time to grooming pitchers in preparation for the opening of the exhibition series with Los Angeles, this weekend.

The veteran hurlers are not to be called upon for duty unless an emergency arises, so Bud Teichout, Al Shealy, Lou Warneke, Malcolm Moss, Lynn Nelson and George Bell are getting attention. All looked more or less impressive against Horshby, Wilson, Cuyler, et. al., yesterday.

Ruth To Discuss Salary With Ruppert

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN
I. N. S. Sports Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 3—Babe Ruth will discuss his salary with Ruppert tomorrow night, it is learned here today. The big Yankee, prepared today for a "breakdown" with Col. John Ruppert, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, is due here tomorrow night.

"Yes, I'm still a holdout but I don't want to discuss it in the papers," said Ruth at the ball park this morning as he slipped out a new "holder" for the education of a large crowd of tourists. Ruth was known as a "holder" because of his habit of holding out for a large salary. He was one of the last players to leave the field.

"I weigh 222 pounds and never felt better in my baseball career," said Ruth today. "I've been getting in shape for weeks. I did a lot of loving all winter and for the last few weeks I have been playing golf almost daily. I have been showing in the second round along. The last score I've made was a 72."

"I think I'll play the full season," said Ruth. "I'm only 36."

Class B Teams Paired For Last Round of Play

WASHINGTON MAN
ADDRESSES GROUPSPsychologist and Educator Makes Five Talks in Day: Brought by Rotary

Mr. Bingham, lecturer and psychologist of Washington, D. C., visited the Marion Business College yesterday morning, Rotary Club luncheon and Harding High School in the afternoon. His topic for his address to the club was "The Challenge of the Future."

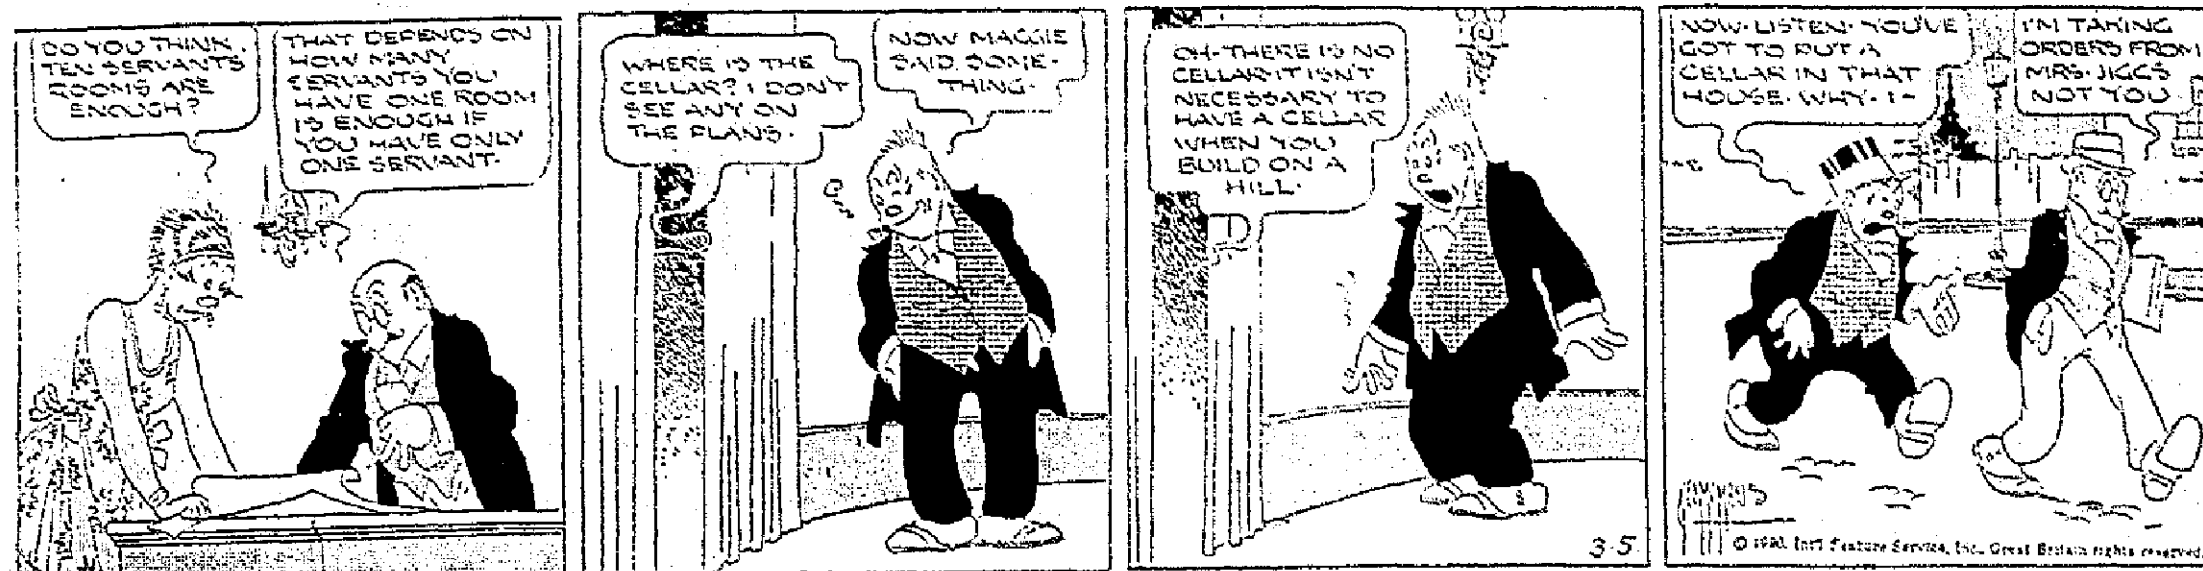

college students was on "Why I Failed," which dealt with the business problems of today and discussed the things necessary for success in the business world.

The first element for success, according to the speaker, is finding a proper place in the world. And the second element is being prepared to meet that position by knowing the employer's business with one idea directing in mind-service.

When he addressed the high school assembly Mr. Bingham talked on "You Will Be What You Will To Be." Success and happiness in life are built around three things, he told the students. These three things are the ability or power to know, reliability, or the power of confidence and service, what you really are.

"There is no easy road to success," he declared, "and there is no such word as luck."

Local Man Laying Out $100 Fine for Creating Disturbance

Thomas Lundergan, East Fairground st., is now in the county jail, working out a fine of $100 and costs imposed by Judge William R. Martin in municipal court late last week.

Unable to pay the fine, Lundergan was committed to jail.

Lundergan was charged with intoxication and disorderly conduct after he, according to police, had gone to his home and kicked over a table on which a dinner was about to be served.

ular transportation number from local hatcheries.

Travel Far

Baby chicks may be sent anywhere within a 72 hours distance, which, when fast train schedules are considered, turns out to be almost any point in the United States.

Whether or not chicks have ever been sent by air, or whether it is prohibited, was not learned, but the local postoffice has no record of chicks ever having been sent by this method.

The number of incoming chicks is a negative quantity compared with the large volume shipped out of Marion.

Loss of Appeal to Common Pleas Court Results in Settlement of Cases

Two civil actions in municipal court in which Mrs. Ethel Brown and Mrs. Gladys Stephenson sought damages from Don A. Howard and Mrs. Gladys M. Howard, have been settled and dismissed at the cost of the defendants.

The settlement of these two suits follows the conclusion of a similar case in common pleas court in which Mrs. Esther Geran sought damages from the Howards. In this suit, Mrs. Geran obtained in municipal court a judgment for $558 against Mrs. Gladys M. Howard. This judgment was affirmed in the common pleas court.

The three suits involved the rights of a "guest passenger" in an automobile to sue the driver for damages for personal injuries sustained in an automobile accident in which the passengers were injured. Mrs. Howard invited Mrs. Geran, Mrs. Stephenson and Mrs. Brown for an auto ride to Keokuk, and on Harding highway west of here, the car skidded into the ditch. The driver and all three passengers were injured. Mrs. Geran sustaining severe injuries. It is understood an insurance company was involved in the suits.

Daily Proverb—"Were every one to sweep before his own house, every street would be clean."

Here's the news item of the century. A wire from Atlanta says that the Georgia peach crop, despite the sub-zero weather, is unhurt. What do you think of that?

There should be no grief over the announcement of a beauty expert that woman's figure is going back to nature's lines. The elongated limbs were becoming pretty monotonous.

Two Detroit policemen shot two bandits to death, aiming in the darkness of an attack at the light reflected on the barrels of the bandits' pistols. Here's a case where luck and justice teamed up.

A Washington dispatch says President Hoover's health has actually improved since he entered the White House. Is the senate going to permit anything so extraordinary as this to get away without an investigation?

A day or two ago we remarked that it would be interesting to know into whose pockets went the money being expended by the farm board to maintain the price of wheat.
The answer seems to be that the fellows who have been buying wheat at the market price and unloading it on the farm board got the big end of it.

The public printer has announced that publishing in the Congressional Record the senate debate on the tariff for the last seven months has cost the country $150,000. Looks like an absolute waste of $149,999.70.

A district with a population of approximately 20,000 in which there isn't a single telephone in operation has been discovered down in West Virginia. Awful! Not a single, solitary party line on which the women folks may listen in.

Both the turtle doves and the spring robins—not the dirty-breasted robins which remained with us for the winter, but the clean-breasted kind—are here again, and we may take it that spring, despite the recent snows, is just around the corner.

When an extra ace showed up in a card game over in Steubenville, one of the participants pulled a gun and began to shoot, wounding a woman who attempted to act as a peacemaker. The moral, of course, is that those who purchase cards should never make the mistake of buying "seconds."

Need for Good English.

There is great waste in the training of teachers in Ohio, and this is especially true in the development of teachers of English.
Such, in effect, is the announcement of Dr.
Earl W. Anderson, head of the appointments division of the Ohio State university which is based on a survey being made through the bureau of educational research.

Dr. Anderson reports that in studying the question of supply and demand so far as teachers of English are concerned, there is a great excess of graduates over the available positions to be had and that in reports from appointment officers, commercial agencies and school superintendents of the state English is listed unanimously as "a field in which there is a definite oversupply of teachers." The records in his own office show, he said, that thirty per cent. of the graduates who specialized in English and sought positions in that field were unable to secure any kind of teaching positions during the past year.

The records show that there is greater demand for teachers qualified to teach English and Latin or English and home economics than for teachers who have specialized in English alone. In other words, an English teacher who is able to teach Latin or home economics as well as English has a far better chance of connecting with a position than one qualified to teach English alone.

Accepting the report as a statement of fact, it shows a situation which can not be viewed with other than regret. There can be no objection to the study of Latin or home economics, but it is unfortunate that there is more demand for them than there is for English, for if there is one field more than another in which there is need of development, it is that of English. Evidence of this may be had on every side. Our ears and eyes all are given proof of it, repeatedly given proof of it, each passing day. There are numerous educational branches which might far better be slighted than English. We might be near perfect in some of them and yet not have call for what we get from them but rarely, but the need of English, good English, is constant. The day seldom passes that knowledge of English and the correct use of it is not profitable.

Latin-American Immigration Bill.

The department of state in Washington is not in sympathy with the proposal to put Latin-American countries on a quota basis as provided by the Johnson bill, which has been favorably reported by the house committee on immigration.

The bill, as revised, provides that the number of immigration visas which annually may be issued to native-born citizens of Canada, Newfoundland, Cuba, and Mexico must be limited to four times the number of American citizens who left this country in 1929 to take up permanent residence in those countries.
The quota of the other countries in the Western hemisphere would be limited to the number of citizens of those countries to whom immigration visas were issued during the fiscal year of 1929, with a minimum of 100 in the case of each nationality even though that number of visas were not issued to its nationals during the year stated.

On this dual basis, the quota allotments to the various nations would be: Argentina, 275; Bolivia, 100; Brazil, 517; Canada and Newfoundland, 67,556; Chile, 229; Colombia, 248; Costa Rica, 163; Cuba, 360; Dominican Republic, 250; Ecuador, 129; San Salvador, 185; Guatemala, 276; Haiti, 100; Honduras, 208; Mexico, 2,560; Nicaragua, 278; Panama, 253; Paraguay, 100; Peru, 365; Uruguay, 100; Venezuela, 255.

Mexico is made the exception to the rule in the revised bill by a provision under which 11,921 native-born Mexicans will be permitted to enter during the fiscal year, 1931, and 8,991 in the fiscal year, 1932. This provision was not made owing to any special liking for native-born Mexicans as citizens, but solely on the representation of Chairman Lodge, of the farm board, who told the committee that an adequate supply of Mexican labor was vitally necessary to the Southwest in the development of that region was to continue. He gave warning that if the supply of such labor was summarily cut off without giving truck and citrus growers opportunity to secure other help, growers of such crops would have to abandon them and turn to cereals in which there is always a surplus.

The state department's objections to the measure are political and commercial. The state department feels that the bill, if enacted into law, would give unnecessary offense in quarters in which we have no desire to offend, and it holds that the same results, if not better, could be attained by intensifying border patrol along the Mexican border.

It is common knowledge that, while the bill may possibly be intended in part to bar Cuban immigration, the chief purpose of the proposed measure is to bar Mexican immigration, and that there is little chance that the nationals of other countries than Canada, Newfoundland, Cuba and Mexico will ever seek to enter this country in numbers such as will make their coming either a social or economic problem is generally recognized.

While the state department does not express itself thus, it is easy to understand its feeling. By providing that six-sevenths of the annual quota of 78,061 provided for in the bill may come from Canada and Newfoundland, we virtually say that we welcome immigration from them and do not want it from any other source on the Western hemisphere; at the same time telling Mexico that we can handle a few more of her nationals in the next two fiscal years because we can use them, but after that the quotas will stand.

The Latin-Americans, particularly those of South America, are proud and high-spirited.
We have built up more friendly relations with them in recent years than ever before obtained. Their nationals do not show any desire to come to us in considerable numbers. Yet we would give them affront needlessly by placing them on a quota basis by the provisions of a measure the chief purpose of which is to bar immigration from Mexico. They would be sure to resent it with subsequent damage to our political and commercial relations so recently established upon a friendly basis.

More than this, Mexico is doing her utmost to discourage her people from coming here. Why should we repay her for her effort by going out of our way to give her affront?

Leon Trotsky is now said to be against "revolution" and for "reform." There's always a change of tune by one who makes the transition from despotic power to under dog.

A Chicago woman is suing for divorce, charging cruelty because her husband hid her over the head with a bowl when he discovered that she, as his partner, had bid "six no" with thirteen diamonds in her hand.
The average bridge player will hold it a case of justifiable assault, and some may see in such a case justification for homicide.

Will Obviate Congestion.

The statement, carried in the Hocking Valley's announcement of the plan to augment its motive power the coming summer with twenty big high-power locomotives, that it planned to lengthen its sidings on the outskirts of the city, should have proved very pleasing reading to our people.

Such sidings will obviate the necessity of holding trains within the city limits, and thus do away with the blocking of streets and highways which has caused traffic congestion and often resulted in considerable delay and inconvenience to vehicular travel; how much only those who have been held up repeatedly will be able to appreciate to the full.

The matter is one which should have received attention and correction long ago, but the fact that correction has long been delayed will in no way lessen its welcome when it comes. In fact, the congestion which has for long been occasioned by blocked crossings may work to increase appreciation of freedom from it when it no longer obtains.

There is, of course, a law for the penetration of the blocking of street crossings beyond a specified period, but it is the rarely exceptional driver who mixes it, and the result is that breaches of the law—and it must be taken that the Hocking Valley is the only offender in this respect; all the roads entering the city offend—seldom are penalized.

BEFORE AND AFTER GENEVA CONFERENCE.

A "Hothouse" Race.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Out-of-door life is good for every one, man, woman and child. It is vital to the infant.
Sometimes, I think the most wonderful babies in the world are in New York City and in other great cities. You are then everywhere, in the parks, in the street, in their carriages, sleeping out-of-doors.

As a matter of fact, you can have just as much fresh air in the city as in the country. And without fresh air, we are likely to be pretty poor specimens of humanity.

No one can estimate all the beneficial results of sleeping out-of-doors. Of course, every one can not do this, but it is possible for every person to sleep with windows open in summer and winter.
Plenty of coverings to keep you warm is all that is needed.

Those of you who have slept out under the stars at night, in the woods, beside a tumbling stream, or on a mountain top, remember the wonderful sense of well-being and buoyancy upon waking up with the birds in the morning. You felt like chopping wood, or walking with seven-league boots, to the ends of the earth. There isn't anything like it.

We who live in this modern world lack much of the stamina and vital sturdiness which characterized our forefathers. Why is this? We are developing into a hothouse race. We live in too warm houses and ride in overheated cars much of the time. We do not exercise enough—do not properly build up our resistance to cold.

Adults should start early in the fall to train the skin to react normally to different temperatures in the winter months. Hot baths, followed by a cool shower, or cool baths taken in a warm room, promote better circulation in the skin.
This helps to harden it to the cold.

Mothers should take great care in the cold months in putting an infant out-of-doors to sleep.
Relaying into a hothouse race. There are no immunities, within reason, of course, to the coldness of air an infant may breathe without harm, if the body is kept warm.

There are some things that must be taken into consideration in letting the baby sleep out in the cold. The first is its circulation. If a child is strong and has a good circulation, he can withstand the cold far better than the undernourished, frail child who has poor circulation.

Then, it will depend upon the age of the child whether it is well to let it sleep out in cold weather.
It is hardly advisable to take a child out until it is at least the month old. A baby under three months old should never be out in a temperature under the freezing point. Judgment must be exercised here. The chief things to consider are extreme cold, dampness and high wind. The sleeping child must be well protected from the elements when he is out-of-doors.

Water babies, who are undernourished and anemic, should be given cod-liver oil and orange juice, together with lots of milk. In this way there will be built up resistance to cold, as well as resistance to disease.

When a child has been very warmly wrapped up and is taken indoors it perspires freely. This is a time to be most careful that it does not catch cold. It should have its wraps taken off gradually, a few at a time.

With proper care and nourishment, and all the fresh air possible the year round, your child will grow into more vigorous and healthier childhood, and indeed, the effects of it will reach far into adult life. Good health should be every child's inheritance, and the mother it gets back to nature the better for the youngster.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

V. N. Q.—How can I gain weight?
A.—What also does a girl stop growing?
A.—Eat plenty of good nourishing food, including milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. Practise deep breathing, exercise daily in the open air.
Get plenty of rest, sleep.

R. T. V. Q.—What causes bad breath?
A.—This may be due to nasal catarrh, indigestion, diseased tonsils, decayed teeth or constipation.

T. J. D. Q.—What causes bunions?
A.—Bunions are caused by the pressure of the shoe on the joint at the great toe and want the pressure is relieved, the bunions can not be cured. Wearing a broad red shoe will place the trouble in some instances.—Copyright, 1929, News-

Editorial Opinion.

WHAT OF SPAIN?

Current dispatches indicate a wide extension and great development of republican sentiment in Spain. The government threatens martial law and makes ready to bolster up, once more, the monarchy.

Just what may happen neither the king nor the new premier probably can foresee or predict. As a matter of fact, Alfaro is trying a bit of detaching in his own behalf. Berenguer generally is recognized as a more figurehead, and whether he will succeed in making anything more than a feeble pretense as De Rivera's successor will depend, chiefly, though indirectly, on the army, the real seat of power in Spanish crises.

De Rivera, in whatever other respect he may have failed, at least left Spain in much better shape than he found it to be upon his accession to power.

But De Rivera was the boss, the king a figure of secondary importance. Just now, from the capital itself, through all the cities of Spain is reverberating the cry of "Down with the king," "Death to the king" in major volume. It remains to be seen whether Berenguer will be able to stay the flood. The iron hand of De Rivera held that competency until his relinquishment of power.

The record of Berenguer is not particularly brilliant, if we employ the more polite definitions of appraisal. In 1921, as commander-in-chief of the Spanish forces in Morocco, he commanded rather famously with odium and disgrace. With a well-equipped army he was scandalously defeated by a handful of ragged tribesmen. Trying to high-bat De Rivera—Spanish fashion—when the latter had attained to power, Berenguer promptly was sent to a Spanish fortress near the French border.
But later he was forgiven and promoted to be head of the king's military household and bodyguard. Alfaro was the needed friend at court.
But perhaps the generally astute monarch, through this favor and support of the complacent new premier, has been guilty of an error of judgment. Be that as it may, an uncomfortably large number of His Majesty's subjects are crying out not only for his downfall, but for his demise. — Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE LEGION'S PROGRAM.

The American Legion performs a valuable service in urging continuously adoption of the principle of the universal draft, or of income conscription. It has been a leader since the end of the World war in emphasizing the basic necessity of conscription for the military services, and advocating in the non-military which are equally essential in war.

The department of war has subscribed in principle to the universal draft. Several years ago it appointed a committee to determine the means by which it would be introduced in the event of another war. It is to be hoped that the committee is functioning and that the country is much further along in the process of adopting universal conscription for war purposes than the public realizes.

Probably the greatest advantage of the principle is the one least talked about. Distribution of war burdens that would make every citizen contribute to the government everything he was able to produce without the possibility of gain would prove in practice the strongest possible argument in favor of permanent peace.

The legion, we hope, will enlist a great army of supporters for its program.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Saturday, March 5 Two work train crews on the Canadian Pacific were buried by a great snowslide while clearing Rogers pass in the Cascades.
Between seventy and 100 men were at work at the time.

Ernest Denny fell down an elevator shaft at the store of the Haberman Hardware company and fractured his skull, causing his death.

William A. Monnette, thirty-nine, died of the very rare malady known as Addison's disease.

The telegraph companies inaugurated the night letter service.

Arthur Elliott suffered a fracture of his skull when the wheel which he was riding was hit by an automobile.

Some Almost Long Enough.

intermissions between the acts.—Lancet Leader.

The Word of God.

For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of bought; may we hold it precious in Thy sight.

Aristotle.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The mighty being of Dante concerning Aristotle will be remembered to the end of time. Dante turned Aristotle "the master of those who know." His knowledge was comprehensive, his mind extraordinarily powerful, logical and acquisitive. The projects which he outlined and partially executed were designed to embrace the entire sum of human knowledge. Whatever Aristotle touched he adorned. But he did much more; he coordinated all that was known about many subjects and put the departments of knowledge in such a definite form that much of his writing stands unimpeachable to the present day. He had a bold and generalizing intelligence; and uttered many perceptive dicta regarding philosophy, physics, biology, metaphysics, psychology, psychology, logic, ethics, economics, politics, poetry, economy, religion, education, natural history, and many other subjects. The very phraseology he employed is quoted constantly still and has given both form and substance to various branches of knowledge. Aristotle has been described as "by common consent the best educated man of any age, with the greatest influence on subsequent times."

Aristotle was a speculative philosopher, not a laboratory scientist. He loved to involve in sweeping generalizations based on sound principles of logic, in which he was past master. But he reported to observed facts when available to substantiate his speculation or confirm his theory. Following a somewhat abstract argument in support of the view that the earth is spherical he continued: "The evidence of the senses further corroborates this. How else would eclipses of the moon show segments as we see them?"

Since it is the interposition of the earth that makes the eclipse, the form of this line —the earth's shadow on the moon—will be caused by the earth's surface, which is therefore spherical.

One of his observations might do credit to any distinguished living scientist:
"Lack of experience diminishes our taking a comprehensive view of the admitted facts.
Hence those who dwell in intimate association with nature and its phenomena grow more and more able to formulate, as the foundation of their theories, principles such as to admit of a wide and coherent development; while those to whom devoted abstract discussions has rendered unobservant of the facts are too ready to dogmatize on the basis of a few observations."

Aristotle gave minute arguments to prove that a heavy body will fall more rapidly than a light one. These fallacious arguments, however, supported a view which remained "established" until the epochal experiment of Galileo in dropping bodies of equal weight from the leaning tower of Pisa.

Aristotle contended that the earth is immobile and located at the center of the universe. His great influence resulted in discrediting the theories of Philolaus and of Aristarchus who, in the century following Aristotle, anticipated the Copernican system of cosmogony.—Copyright, 1930, International

Dinner Stories.

"Your name will echo down the corridors of time."

"I doubt it," answered Senator Sorghum.
"If I can't make the dear public sit up and take notice while I'm alive, I'm not going to expect it to have me paged in Statuary hall."

"Give to the world the best that you have and the best will come back to you."

"Yes, that's the way it's been with every poem I've written so far."

"I have placed you at a whist table with your friends," said the hostess.

"I'm sorry," rejoined Miss Cayenne. "I prefer to play the game with strangers. I'm not an expert, you know, and I prefer people who are not well enough acquainted to quarrel with me."

Mrs. Rawlins—"My dear, did you never observe that designers take a woman's head to adorn many of your collars?"

Her husband, meekly—"No, but I have observed that designers take many of my collars to adorn a woman's head."

Mr. Slack—"I want you to understand that I have my own train of thought."

Mrs. Slack—"Yes, I know. I have a very slow train with an awfully poor conductor, John."

"If, as you admit, you were three miles away digging potatoes when this man was arrested for speeding, how can you testify that the car was going at the most only twenty miles an hour?"

"Judge. Ah used to own that cab."

Wins Oratorical Honor

Wilbert Milley, of Waldo, Is Named College Orator at Oberlin

TALKING is the one thing that Wilbert Milley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Milley, east of Waldo, would rather do than anything else—because he's so proficient in the art. Milley has received the honor of being named college orator at Oberlin college, Western Ohio. Recently he won the Russell oratorical contest at Oberlin and placed fourth in the Ohio Intercollegiate contest held at Delaware last Saturday.

In addition to his oratory work, Milley has participated in variety debates and in college dramatic productions. He is a member of the Phi Kappa Phi literary society, of the college newspaper staff, and of the church choir, and is president of the Cap and Dagger Dramatic club. This talkative young man has membership in Theta Alpha Phi and Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary dramatic and dramatic fraternities, and is also a member of Pi Kappa Phi, social fraternity.

Last fall Milley played regularly on the football team and last Wednesday night against Ohio Northern university, he completed three years of service as guard on the basketball team.

He graduates in June. He will take up high school teaching at the beginning of the next school year.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

This is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid bowels.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel just a healing, soothing, vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping in the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cleanse the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 50c, 90c.—Adv.

To Hospital Woman's Board

MRS. J. H. WATTERS and Mrs. T. C. Schanmayer were voted into membership on the Woman's Board of Marion City Hospital, at a meeting yesterday morning with Misses May Ellis and Emma O'Brien, at their home on East Church st.

In a business session preceding luncheon, Mrs. John T. McNamara read a brief report of the work being done in the new laboratory at City hospital, which is under the charge of the Women's board. The report showed that bids are being received for the laboratory supplies. As soon as these bids are in, they will be considered and the materials purchased.

The hostesses and place of the next meeting, March 19, will be announced later.

THE home of Mrs. G. L. Lund, 218 South Greenwood st., was attractively decorated last night for a benefit card party given by Florence Killing Harding circle, Child Conservation League. Nine tables were arranged for bridge, honors going to Mrs. Clarence L. Rutherford and Gilmore Hiett. Two contest awards were presented Mrs. L. H. Shode and C. L. Burton. Mrs. H. G. Greenfield won second honors.

Little Miss Marjorie Lund gave a reading and song for the entertainment of the guests. The hostesses were assisted in serving by Mrs. Edward Huber, Mrs. G. E. Smeltzer, Mrs. J. C. Gelbaugh and Mrs. Z. P. Davis.

Mrs. Lund will entertain the circle at its regular meeting, March 10.

Hostess At Dinner

Mrs. Lloyd Sharp, 339 Mound st., was hostess at a 6 o'clock dinner last night honoring Miss Myrtle Rose of the Myrtle Rose Players.

Wide Awake Club

Members of the Wide Awake club were entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Shaebe, Olney av. Three tables were filled for bridge, high honors going to Mrs. Earl Sargent. Mrs. H. E. Cardiff won second honors and Mrs. L. E. VanAlst, third. Mrs. W. P. Mahaffey was presented a guest award. Mrs. Mahaffey and Mrs. Lloyd Shaebe were guests of the club.

Appointments for the lunch served by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Mahaffey, card 1 out at St. Patrick's day color scheme. Mrs. Cardiff will entertain the club in two weeks at her home, Chestnut st.

Mrs. Virgil Day

Hostess to Club

A regular meeting of the Hi-Jinx club was held last night with Mrs. Virgil Day, Forest st. Three tables were filled for bridge, honors for high scores going to Mrs. Cecil Balducci and Mrs. James Mitchell. Miss William Rowker, Mrs. Ed. Latham and Mrs. Balducci were guests of the club. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Mrs. Mitchell will entertain the club in two weeks at her home, Spencer st.

What Shall I Do

for Gray Hair?

By ALICE STRAWN

I am often asked a good way to restore gray faded or streaked hair. While there are many preparations on the market, the correct recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, may be had in Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur Compound. All druggists carry it, and since the cost is only 75¢ a bottle, there is really no need for any woman to go to the bother of preparing it herself. You would be surprised if you knew the number of men and women who employ Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur because its use is undecidable.

You simply moisten a comb or a soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, one small strand at a time. By morning the gray disappears and another application or two sees your hair beautifully and evenly restored to its full original color. There is no suggestion of that hard, dead look that greasy fastidious women, I advise you, avoid—no itching, no burning, no itching. Try Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur. —Adv.

for the purpose. I know of nothing better than a mixture of good old sage and sulphur. You can either prepare the mixture at home yourself, or, as most women prefer, buy it already prepared and ready to use.

ATTEND REVIVAL

Fifty Respond to Altar Call at Greenwood Church

Large audiences are attending the series of meetings at Greenwood Evangelical church, at which the Rev. E. L. Huskins, of Akron is evangelist and the Rev. C. H. Kern of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, is song leader. The Rev. Irvin Kauffman, pastor of the church, is assisting the evangelist.

There have been approximately 50 responses to the altar call since the meetings opened. Last night there were three responses. Afternoon meetings are held each day except Sunday, at 2:30 o'clock. Services at night are held at 7:30 o'clock. Three services will be held Sunday.

Girls Who Slump

Thousands of girls who drag themselves around certain days of every month! Painful periods that need not be painful—that are not painful to those who know of Midol. These wonderful tablets make menstruation an incident. No pain, not even discomfort when you have learned to depend on Midol, the women who used to have the hardest time have found this to be true.

This marvelous product is the work of specialists. It is not a narcotic, but it stops the pain just the same in five to seven minutes. And if you take it in time, the pain never even starts. Every doctor has Midol on the aluminum packet case for his clients, so it is folly to suffer!—Adv.

A STORY OF LOVE AND LIFE IN HOLLYWOOD

By SIDNEY HERSHEL SMALL

CHAPTER 21
John Andrew's fingers went to the round dollars and came away. "Come here to get money out of me, not to get money out of me," he said. "O, well, easy go, I'm done but don't let me go to the game—two of the best come to their feet, brushing their hair vigorously—I'll hang and observe your technique a little closely."

"I've got something which I believe you fellows need pretty badly," John Andrew said. "A savings account?" "Your name, please?" "John Andrew," he said. "And with that, John Andrew's account is open. He'll be paid for any part of the money he's put in. I'm representing Mr. Blake."

"You're all wet on your noses," Fitzgerald said. "I don't like the way you're putting things together. Too damn clumsy."

John Andrew, knowing nothing of either, sat back and said nothing.

"But, for the sake of argument, I'll admit this," Fitzgerald went on. "I'll be hanged if I see why we didn't think of experimentation with metal substitutes nor how such an elaborate outfit can be so perfectly silent."

"But it is," John Andrew said. "You know it is," the youthful department head snapped. "So do we. Don't you think I had the boys put it together?"

"Humm," John Andrew said. "You fellows offered it to me and I said 'No'."

"Don't. But you know that. Our letter covered that point. We'll stick to our offer."

Knowing nothing of letter nor offer, John Andrew decided to try. "I left San Francisco a couple of days ago, and while the wire from my partner was fairly specific—"

"We'll raise the ten thousand to twenty," Fitzgerald suggested. "It's worth that to us. . . to any one. Just to get the edge on the rest of the companies. I'll tell you this frankly, old man: the patent isn't fool proof. But we can raise the deal with it. . . one who tries to play with it. . . just as you could do with us if we tried the same game. And this makes my department look pretty good. . . what do you say?"

"We'll take twenty-five thousand," John Andrew said soberly. "I suppose you want our camera ready to work, as fast as we can get it to you?"

"The devil with your camera," the engineer objected. "It looks like a perpetual motion machine; it's got enough cogs and levers to run a couple of tractors. We're buying what we hope is pretty close to a basic idea; we'll do our own manufacturing, or have one of the big camera companies do it in our name."

"Didn't you write my partner to get one down as quickly as he could?" "No; just told him we'll come across with ten thousand, and to go see our representative in San Francisco to sign things. . . that'll have to wait now until you both sign, of course; even an engineer knows that both partner's names are necessary. . . well, fella. . . I'll go you twenty thousand if I roll higher dice than you do; twenty-five if you top me. That's better than arguing, because I might get pushed. . . I'm Scotch myself," said Kellogg. "Get out your dice."

Sure for the old inventor, John Andrew did not care which way the cubes would show; he was already figuring on sending Blake later a check covering his own half of the transaction, so that the old man would have all of the money accruing from the soundless camera. He said to Fitzgerald, as the engineer passed through a drawer looking for dice, "This is a pretty lucky break for me. I'm not usually lucky. . . this has sort of taken the wind out of the old sails."

Fitzgerald warmed the dice between his palms. "Go on to win the girl, and all that sort of thing?"

John Andrew went back several years for his answer: "You'd be surprised," he grinned.

A moment later, reading the total of the dice he had rolled, he said, "My luck's changed. . . it took a 12 to beat your natural, but I've done it."

"Consolidated," said Fitzgerald. "Have a lot of jack Twenty-five grand it is. We'll go ahead getting a couple of cameras ready."

"The Blake-Kellogg camera—"

"S good name as any other. Getting the Blake-Kellogg cameras in shape. As soon as the papers are signed you get your check."

"There won't be any trouble about that," John Andrew informed him. "I'll wire Blake to do whatever your San Francisco office wants, and have him send the documents to me here; I'll sign 'em, and then the heavy eating begins. My partner must have been excited when he heard from you; he wants to make a regular size outfit instead of this model, and—here, scribble me some sort of agreement: just write. Upon receipt of legal transfer of patent by the Consolidated Picture corporation I agree to accept $25,000 in full payment thereof, and sign it like a good egg. . . take my word for it, you're getting every cent the thing's worth, especially in its form of development; we've got to do a lot of hard work to perfect it."

"How about coming out and having lunch with me?" John Andrew asked. "Not a chance," Fitzgerald said. "Wish I could, but now that we've got this idea reeled up I'm going to do a little tinkering around, and then go throw my chest out down in the front offices and let the bosses know what a bright boy I am. . . besides, I'm grinning and walking in the door with Kellogg. I nicker you good in the other room, but we'd probably match for the lunch, and you'd take me like an actor does his publicity. See you in a day or so. You'd better put your roll, soon's you get in, where we can't get you into another l'il game."

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

By ADELE GARRISON

Harry informs Madge that the "Miss Terry Driver Had Trained Them."

"I snapped back a decided answer to Lillian's insinuation. 'What would I care for Robert's reaction or Harry's which is troubling you?'"

"Both," she answered surprisingly. "It's just this—"

"She walked to one of the cupboards which form one of the hotel's chief attractions for women. It was one which I knew she used for putting away things only rarely used, and I watched her curiously as she went to the farthest end of it and brought out a blue and silver afternoon gown of the vintage of several years back, a gown which had been peculiarly becoming to her. Her face was crimson with embarrassment as she came back to me."

"I couldn't tell this to anyone but you, Madge," she said, "and it isn't easy even to tell you. I saw with deliberate tartness, 'I'd like to know anything you couldn't tell me. And if my eyes are in working order, you don't need tell me anything. But that the gown that Robert used to admire so extravagantly and ask you to wear so frequently?'"

"She nodded, with eyes still averted from mine. I ought not to have kept it, I suppose," she said, but it wasn't worn, and I hated to destroy it or have someone else wear it. But I do want you to know that I haven't given it a thought until now for a long time."

"I know that without your telling me," I said. "And there was no reason in the world for your dressing it. It's a mighty good thing that you did keep it for I imagine it is going to mean a lot to Robert."

"You mean," she faltered, "that you think I ought—"

"The Old Gown"

"I don't know what you thought," I reported. "But I know what you're going to do. You're going to give me this gown now to park, together with a light coat to wear in case you have to take off your big coat before you get to Robert's room. And as soon as we get to that place opposite Mrs. McGraw's, you're going to get into this gown so that Robert will see you in the gown he loved best. Give it to me and tell me where I'll find the box that goes with it. And give me your own morning-gown you always wore when I remember. And hurry—before Harry gets back."

"She drew back the door which she'd locked to me."

can wait for explanations until later—self she ever gets any. I'll answer that question in your eyes before you ask it. I haven't the slightest idea what the dat-footed gentleman wants, or who's behind him, but he can't have it. Are you with me?"

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDN MOUTIMER LEWIS

WEDNESDAY. It would be a bright and sunny day if it was raining, and Jubilee got wet through before he got to the ground when I let him down by the rope in his teeth, and the water came down on the back of my head and neck, and some of it ran around under my chin, and some of it went down the spine of my back and I had of bad a fall like a dog I would of been wet to the end of it, and I wonder how my feet would of liked that.

When I had pulled my rope up and hid it and had got dressed and went downstairs and carried out my ash and got wet and got the first going good and got the pull and went out to the barn, the bunch was all wet when they got there, and the dogs were all laying down in the horse's old stall which is empty now since my father sold Frank Horse, and all at once a big cloud seemed to come along and empty itself on the barn the way the drops hit the roof. I had got done milking and the bunch told me I was going to get drowned carrying the milk in, but I emptied out the barn bucket with an old sack and took off all my clothes and
